

FRANKIE CHAVEZ

Frankie Chavez's music mixes different types of sounds, reflecting all the musical influences he encountered while traveling the world. The result is a kind of Blues/Folk, with atmospheres ranging from clean to rough or psychedelic. Though it's easy to recognize different musical influences (Robert Johnson, Jimi Hendrix, Kelly Joe Phelps, Ry Cooder) it's hard to define his music in a single word.

Lately, Frankie released the single "The Search", chosen to be the official song for Rip Curl Pro Search 2009 and participated on the original soundtrack, from the documentary film "Pare, Escute, Olhe", by Jorge Pelicano.

In March 2010 he released his self-titled Debut EP "Frankie Chavez", produced by Optimus Discos.
